AMERICAN CONSERVATORY THEATER nurtures the art of live theater through dynamic productions, intensive actor training in its conservatory, and an ongoing dialogue with its community. Under the leadership of Artistic Director Carey Perloff and Managing Director Heather Kitchen, A.C.T. embraces its responsibility to conserve, renew, and reinvent its relationship to the rich theatrical traditions and literatures that are our collective legacy, while exploring new artistic forms and new communities. A commitment to the highest standards informs every aspect of A.C.T.'s creative work.

Founded in 1965 by William Ball, A.C.T. opened its first San Francisco season at the Geary Theater in 1967. In the 1970s, A.C.T. solidified its national and international reputation, winning a Tony Award for outstanding theater performance and training in 1979. During the past three decades, more than 300 A.C.T. productions have been performed to a combined audience of seven million people; today, A.C.T.'s performance, education, and outreach programs annually reach more than 220,000 people in the San Francisco Bay Area. In 1996, A.C.T.'s efforts to develop creative talent for the theater were recognized with the prestigious Jujamcyn Theaters Award.

Since Perloff’s appointment in 1992, A.C.T. has enjoyed continued success with groundbreaking productions of classical works and bold explorations of contemporary playwriting. Guided by Perloff and Kitchen, who joined the company in 1996, A.C.T. has enjoyed a remarkable period of record-breaking audience expansion and renewed financial stability. The company continues to produce challenging theater in the rich context of symposia, audience discussions, and community interaction.

The conservatory, now serving 1,900 students every year, was the first training program not affiliated with a college or university accredited to award a master of fine arts degree. Danny Glover, Annette Bening, Denzel Washington, and Winona Ryder are among the conservatory’s distinguished former students. With the 1995 appointment of Melissa Smith as conservatory director, A.C.T. revitalized its commitment to excellence in actor training and to the relationship between training, performance, and audience. The A.C.T. Master of Fine Arts Program has moved to the forefront of America’s actor training programs, while serving as the creative engine of the company at large.

FROM DARKNESS INTO THE LIGHT

by Laird Williamson

Once upon a time, Charles Dickens wrote “a ghost story of Christmas,” hoping to change the lives of those who read his inspirational tale. Dickens’s enchanting conjuration of ghosts was animated by a passionate concern for the gloomy condition of contemporary society in England, where the industrial revolution and economic depression had begun to manufacture an atmosphere of indifference. Social injustice was epidemic; children labored under appalling conditions, and for the most part the mass of society lived lives of grinding poverty.

Instead of writing a pedantic pamphlet intended to clarify the life of the poor to those who found themselves better off, however, Dickens launched upon a work he believed would be much more powerful. “By the end of the year,” he said in 1843, “you will certainly feel that a sledgehammer has come down with 20 times the force—20 times the force—I could exert by following my first idea.” He was auguring the creation of A Christmas Carol.

We cannot gauge to what degree his book assuaged the ills of Victorian society. We do know, however, that Dickens resurrected Christmas. At a time when the old holiday festivities were on the decline, he reconstructed a model for the season which embraced sparkling merriment, warm openheartedness, piping hospitality, bright fires, glowing faces, radiant spirits, flickering laughter, and a dazzling generosity. His “sledgehammer” blow was more like a warm breath thawing a frozen heart. By rekindling an almost extinguished flame, Dickens’s name forevermore was made synonymous with Christmas. And his hope that humanity’s estate could become “a warm and glowing celebration of sympathy and love” became much more than just a flickering dream.

Dickens believed that the diseases of industrial society could only be cured by a profound revolution within the individual human spirit. So Ebenezer Scrooge came to be. Scrooge epitomizes the “utilitarian man” of the age, a man whose existence is driven solely by the accumulation of wealth. He embodies the mercenary indifference of the prosperous classes who believe that their responsibility for their fellow human beings is fulfilled once they have paid their taxes. The redemption of Dickens’s seemingly irredeemable miser signals the possibility of redemption for the apparently irredeemable spirit of all humankind.

In this production of A Christmas Carol and the adaptation created for it, we have imagined Scrooge’s world to be one of shut-up boxes, cases, and cupboards—coffins of his memories, strongholds into which his feelings have long since retreated. Out of the pain of existence, Scrooge has constructed elaborate receptacles for his life. He has created his own “hiding place.” Fragments of the past are sealed in keepsake boxes; the wardrobes, shelves, and drawers have become the hosts of his psychological essence. His heart confides in no one. In the chests and caskets his secrets lie dormant. In dark coffers Scrooge’s inner life has become entombed.

The strains of an antique carol, the haunting mental image of Jacob Marley, the premonition of his own physical death, and the power of Christmas itself force Scrooge to journey inward. The locks and latches on the compartments of his memory spring open. From the aggregation of remembrances emerge the neglected wonders of human experience. His life begins to transform. Scrooge, the failed human being, is rejuvenated by encounters with impressions of his childhood. He is awed, moved, stirred by natural feelings he has denied for a long, long time. The marvelous joy, laughter, and pain of each illusion, the scenes of affection and brotherhood between family and friends, bring him closer to his most dreaded fear: a loveless and lonely death.

It is at the moment when Scrooge comes face to face with his imminent death that Christmas happens. Out of the primal event of light and life returning to the earth at the deepest time of the year, Scrooge is reborn in the darkest time of his life. He becomes a child again. He sheds the shackles he formed by locking out his childhood and his youth, and by abdicating his maturity to a hostile, indifferent world. He becomes the hammering reminder of Dickens’s insistence that society has a profound responsibility for each individual life on this planet. He becomes one with all births, the embodiment of the renewal that is life. Scrooge represents the baby of whom R. D. Laing speaks, who brings the “possibility of reprieve,” who is a “potential prophet, a new spiritual prince, a new spark of light precipitated into the outer darkness.” Scrooge’s story is the essence of Christmas itself.

THE CHILDREN OF A CHRISTMAS CAROL

Each production of A Christmas Carol becomes a holiday adventure for a host of young people from the A.C.T. Young Conservatory (YC). Filling roles from Tiny Tim to Boy Scrooge, these talented and dedicated students from throughout the Bay Area have the unique opportunity to extend their theatrical education by participating in a professional production from auditions to first rehearsal to final applause.

The cast of this year’s A Christmas Carol includes the following students selected from the YC’s 1999 fall session:

Eric Brittain Butte (15) is a ninth-grade student at The Urban School of San Francisco and has taken classes in the YC for three sessions. He enjoys acting, jazz, piano, and soccer. Christina Bolognini (11) is in the sixth grade at Loyola Elementary in Los Altos and enjoys reading, writing, clarinet, and dance, but her first love is performing in musical theater. Joey Browne-Contreras (12), a seventh grader at Carquinez Middle School, recently appeared in the A.C.T. production of The Threepenny Opera. He has also performed in The Music Man in Walnut Creek. Tamisha Corry (17) is in the 12th grade at St. Mary’s College High School and enjoys singing, dancing, and traveling. Natalie Rae Pressman (8) is a third grader at Clarendon Second Community School; she is fluent in French and takes piano, dance, voice, and drama classes and enjoys playing the trombone. Sonja Dale (13) is in the eighth grade at Martin Luther King, Jr. Middle School. She has appeared in numerous productions ranging from The Woodland Prince with Berkeley Ballet Theatre to the East Bay School of the Arts’ Much Ado about Nothing. Max Dubowy (9) is a fourth-grade student at Brandeis Hillel Day School; he was featured in the A.C.T. production of Hecuba and enjoys miniature golf, swimming, baseball, and rock climbing. Noelle Eckman (10), a fourth grader at Brandeis Hillel Day School, made her A.C.T. debut in A Christmas Carol last season. She has also appeared in Exits, CATS, The Wiz, and Fiddler on the Roof. Benjamin Farber (17) is in the 12th grade at Drew College Preparatory School; an accomplished cellist, he has performed in numerous solo recitals and orchestral concerts. Rachel Forbes (10), a fourth grader at Convent of the Sacred Heart School, has wanted to be an actress since she was four years old; she wants to master many different accents and how to cry on cue. Coby Gordon (13), an eighth grader at Brandeis School, appeared in the San Francisco Opera’s Death in Venice. He holds a Guinness record and enjoys juggling, lacrosse, and playing the guitar. Dillon Harraden-Shea (13), an eighth-grade student at Herbert Hoover Middle School, enjoys tap dancing and singing in the school choir. Eli Koral (13), an eighth grader at the Rooftop School, was in A Christmas Carol last year. He enjoys photography, stilt walking, juggling, and film making. Melinite Angel Ledbetter (9) is in the fourth grade at Elsa Widermann School and has been performing in church and community plays since she was three years old. Julia Mattison (11) returns to A Christmas Carol for her fourth consecutive year. A fifth grader at the San Francisco Day School, Julia also appeared in the YC production of Annie. Matt Mauricio (13), an eighth grader at the A. P. Giannini School, has attended two sessions of YC training and is a tenor/baritone in his school choir. Joshua Miller (8), a third grader at the San Francisco School, loves visiting Disneyland and New York City “because the museums are cool.” Lawrence Papale (11) is in the fifth grade at Stuart Hall, where he sings in the school chorus; he also studies the flute and likes to make people laugh. Jonathan Rosen (10) is in the fifth grade at Town School and loves to play the violin, write stories, draw, and play soccer. Michael John Sullivan (15) was in A Christmas Carol at A.C.T. last season. He is a ninth-grade student at Sonoma Valley High School and has appeared in more than 15 theatrical productions throughout California.
Celebrate the Season with A.C.T.

There’s fun for the entire family at the Geary Theater this December.

For those who would not otherwise be able to afford to attend A Christmas Carol, there will be a Bring What You Can/Pay What You Wish performance on Thursday, December 2, at 7 p.m. Patrons are allowed to pay any amount for tickets when they bring in canned fruit, chili, or tuna, or donations of books in English or Spanish for preschool through second-grade students. Donations will benefit Compass Community Services, an organization working in the Tenderloin to help families confronting poverty and homelessness. Patrons are limited to one ticket per donated item, two tickets per person. Tickets go on sale at 5 p.m. the day of the performance.

A.C.T. celebrates the opening night of A Christmas Carol, December 3, with a 7:30 p.m. Christmas tree lighting featuring cast members and carol sing-alongs led by members of the acclaimed Contra Costa Children’s Chorus.

A.C.T.’s beloved Cyril Magnin matinee tradition returns with a performance of A Christmas Carol on Saturday, December 4. Free tickets will be distributed to economically disadvantaged children and families who will fill the Geary Theater for A.C.T.’s ninth Cyril Magnin matinee, named in honor of the late San Francisco businessman and dedicated philanthropist who was one of A.C.T.’s major supporters and benefactors. Past Cyril Magnin matinee performances have reached disadvantaged young people and families through urban public school districts and such community-based agencies as continued on page 28

Then on Sunday, December 5, at 2 p.m., join us for Good Cheer A.C.T. Tea, a holiday benefit at the Geary Theater following the matinee performance of A Christmas Carol. Guests will enjoy a visit with the Carol cast and A.C.T. staff, a backstage tour of the theater, and a delicious high tea. Tickets to the event include center orchestra seats. Proceeds will benefit A.C.T.’s artistic, educational, and outreach programs. In the spirit of Dickens’s play and the holiday season, guests are invited to bring new unwrapped gifts of clothing to keep neighborhood children warm and dry (i.e., socks, gloves, sweatshirts, coats). Donations will benefit Compass Community Services. To receive an invitation to Good Cheer A.C.T. Tea, please call Amy Kirk in the A.C.T. Development Department at (415) 439-2308.

ATTENTION HOLIDAY REVELERS!
What is Christmas without cookies and hot cider? Refreshments will be available in the Sky Lobby and Fred’s Columbia Room in the Geary Theater during the hour before each performance of A Christmas Carol. (Please remember that food and drink are not permitted in the auditorium.)

THE YOUNG CONSERVATORY’S WINTER/SPRING SESSION IS JUST AROUND THE CORNER
The 20 young actors in A Christmas Carol are all students studying in the Young Conservatory (YC). A.C.T.’s internationally recognized actor training program for young people aged 8 to 18. Young people who want to explore their creative spirit should consider enrolling in the Young Conservatory’s winter/spring session (February 22–May 22), which offers more than 30 classes in acting technique, musical theater, improvisation, physical comedy, voice and speech, dialect, and much more. Applications for the winter/spring session are now available—call (415) 439-2444 or visit us online at www.act-sf.org.

NEW WINTER COURSES AT STUDIO A.C.T.
Studio A.C.T., the conservatory’s weekend and evening program of professional theater classes for adults 19 and older, offers several new courses in its upcoming winter session (January 3–March 19): Tom Stoppard Scene Study coincides with the American premiere of Stoppard’s newest play, The Invention of Love, on the A.C.T. mainstage. This course focuses on the plays of the Academy Award—and Tony Award-winning author of Arcadia, The Real Thing, Rosencrantz and Guildenstern Are Dead, and Indian Ink (all of which have been seen at A.C.T.), and last year’s hit film Shakespeare in Love. Audition Prep for the Advanced Singer helps singers put the polish on their musical presentation and unravel audition anxiety before it unravels them. On-Camera Audition and Acting Technique, an advanced-level acting course, explores the world of the screen actor as it pertains to auditioning and scene work. Alexander Technique II continues work begun in Alexander Technique I and further explores the techniques employed in this universal and comprehensive movement and voice system. Scene Study for Deaf Theater explores the techniques used to transform written text into believable, living action. Text and character analysis will be enhanced through physical exercises and creative imagery. The history of American Sign Language will also be explored as students translate and rehearse scenes and monologues from a variety of theater genres and historical periods. Clowning offers students the opportunity to develop an in-depth physical character, with an emphasis on discovering each student’s individual clown persona.

Please call (415) 439-2332 (or visit us online at www.act-sfbay.org) to receive program information, schedules, and tuition prices. All applicants must schedule an enrollment/placement interview. Space is limited and some courses require prerequisite training.

THE COUNTDOWN HAS BEGUN!

Now that A.C.T.’s 1999–2000 season is well under way, contributions to the company’s Hewlett Challenge Fund have begun to roll in. Last summer, the prestigious William and Flora Hewlett Foundation awarded A.C.T. a $300,000 challenge grant in recognition of the great strides the company has made in recent seasons toward fiscal stability in the wake of the Loma Prieta earthquake. Provided A.C.T. can produce an operating surplus of at least $300,000 by June 30, 2000, the Hewlett Foundation will match that amount by awarding A.C.T. $100,000 for operating expenses and an additional $200,000 for reduction of the company’s accumulated deficit.

It is critical to the company’s continued success that A.C.T. embark on the new millennium deficit-free, and the Hewlett Foundation grant will go a long way toward meeting that goal. To meet the Hewlett challenge, however, we need your help! Please mail gifts to A.C.T. Hewlett Challenge, 30 Grant Avenue, San Francisco, CA 94108, or call (415) 439-2353 for more information.

Perloff has since led the company to unprecedented success, including the receipt of the prestigious 1996 Jujamcyn Theaters Award and the triumphant reopening of the Geary Theater following its $28.2 million restoration. A DECADE OF NEW PLAYS FOR YOUNG ACTORS

by Jessica Werner

The A.C.T. Young Conservatory New Plays Program began, as many successful innovations do, with a challenge. “In searching for dynamic work for our teenage acting students to perform, I realized just how unheard the voices of young people have been in the theater,” says Young Conservatory Director Craig Slaght, reminiscing about the impulse he had in 1989 to launch the New Plays Program, which celebrates its tenth anniversary this fall. The Young Conservatory offers a broad range of theater courses to young people aged 8 to 18, and age-appropriate material for student productions has always been a rare commodity. “Traditional plays written for children didn’t present enough of a challenge for the caliber of student that comes to A.C.T., yet I felt compelled to find ways for them to experience the stage in works relevant to their age and circumstances. I remember saying to myself at the time, Where better could we challenge America’s finest playwrights to write new plays with a youthful perspective than at A.C.T., where our twofold mission—to produce fine theater and train outstanding actors—fosters an ongoing interaction between young students and experienced professionals?”

“I felt A.C.T. had the potential to become a home for playwrights to create challenging multigenerational new work, born in an atmosphere free from the demands for commercial success. But, I thought, Who would understand the need for this kind of work? Who would accept our challenge to ‘see the world through the eyes of the young?’”

Since its inception, the program has commissioned works from an impressive range of seasoned dramatists, including Timothy Mason, Constance Congdon, Lynne Alvarez, Daisy Foote, Mary Gallagher, Jim Grimsley, Joe Pintauro, Brad Slaight, and Paul Zindel. Twelve of the plays commissioned to date have been published by Smith & Kraus and continue to affect the lives of young people in theater productions and classrooms throughout the United States and Canada.

Each year A.C.T. commissions a distinguished playwright to write a dramatic work from the point of view of young characters, which in turn is developed in an intensive workshop process. “We didn’t want to just do the usual overproduced children’s repertoire,” says Slaight, “and you can’t expect a 15-year-old to play Willy Loman. I dreamed of increasing the literature for the American theater to encompass a range in which the life experiences of young people could resonate.”

“What makes me say yes to Craig [when he asks me to write a new play for the program] is the same thing that makes my fellow playwrights say yes,” says Timothy Mason, who has written three plays for the New Plays Program, including its inaugural production, Ascension Day (1990), Time on Fire, which premiered at A.C.T. in August, and The Less Than Human Club (1994), which will be presented by the Young Conservatory at the Magic Theatre in July. “What Craig is doing simply doesn’t exist anywhere else. When you write a play for the New Plays Program, you know that what you are doing will actually expand the literature for the stage. A portion of literature, one that was previously lacking, virtually nonexistent, will now exist because of your work at A.C.T. That is a great enticement.”

“I remember when I had just completed The Less Than Human Club in the summer of 1994, I was at a playwrights’ gathering at Lanford Wilson’s house in Long Island. It was an opportunity for an impromptu first public reading of the play. It went over very well, everyone laughed and cried. And then [Pulitzer Prize–winning playwright] Paul Zindel came over to me and longingly asked, ‘Do you think Craig Slaight would ever commission a play from me?’ I said, ‘Yes, I think he probably would.’”

Writing Without “Writing Down”

Writing age-appropriate material for young actors can be quite a challenge for playwrights whose literary voices are distinctly adult. Playwrights commissioned by the New Plays Program often worry their work may be too dark, too weighty, to be tackled by teenage actors. Among all the New Play Program’s commissioned writers, only Zindel (The Effect of Gamma Rays on Man-in-the-Moon Marigolds [1995]) had previously been known as a writer for young people. The others have risen to the challenge to create plays whose teen protagonists confront strikingly mature problems. Pintauro’s Reindeer Soup (1992) featured a family of motherless kids starving in the Canadian wilderness with their idealistic, impractical father. A Bird of Prey (1996), by Atlanta playwright and novelist Jim Grimsley, tackled a gay teen’s personal battle with his own sexuality and the ubiquity of casual violence. “It’s actually a tough play for adults to watch kids do, but it wasn’t that tough on the kids,” says Grimsley. “I wasn’t going to ‘write down’ to their level, because I think they can handle anything. There’s no hiding the real world and its violence from them.”

“Each of the three works I have written for A.C.T. has been set in a different historical period,” says Mason, “from the Revolutionary War of 1775 to the social tumult of 1968. Yet I have discovered with each one that the concerns of adolescents are absolutely universal: Where do I fit in? Do I have a purpose, a sense of worth? Could anyone love me? These questions do not change, and the actors tap into the characters’ emotional lives beautifully.”

THE WORKSHOP PROCESS

Just like the development process through which new plays must go prior to a professional mainstage production, every New Plays Program project undergoes a five- to ten-week workshop and rehearsal period. Each playwright spends several weeks in residence at A.C.T. during that period, often incorporating the students’ input into their scripts, before the play is performed to an invited audience.

“The students were just great,” says Daisy Foote about her experience at A.C.T. in the summer of 1998 developing her play When They Speak of Rita. “They were certainly a lot more cooperative than some of the adult actors I’ve worked with. They are open and accepting, they’re not thrown by changes. I guess as we get older, fear becomes part of our language, but they don’t have that yet.”

“The brilliance of Craig’s vision springs from his understanding of young people’s eagerness to rise to high expectations,” adds A.C.T. Conservatory Director Melissa Smith. “Whenever I visit a Young Conservatory rehearsal, I hear the same vocabulary we use in the master of fine arts program, and I see that the young actors work toward the same goals our older actors do. The training they receive is appropriate for their age, but it is also utterly professional.”

TRANSATLANTIC COLLABORATION

Back in 1989, as plans for the New Plays Program were still evolving, Slaight said that it was his “hope that our process will result in a significant work about young people that can be produced by other groups around the country and around the world." The New Plays Program now boasts an international reputation as a source of high-quality new writing for the theater.

As the New Plays Program embarks on its second decade of new-play development, plans are under way to launch the program's first-ever transatlantic commission and production. In association with London's acclaimed Royal National Theatre—home to National Connections, a new-play development program for young people much like A.C.T.'s—student actors in the A.C.T. New Plays Program will travel to London next spring for workshops at the National and at the Royal Academy of Dramatic Art. The New Plays Program has commissioned a play from renowned British playwright Bryony Lavery, which will be performed at A.C.T. in August 2000.

"Craig contacted me earlier this year, and I was astounded to discover how similar our programs are," says Suzy Graham-Adriani, producer of the National's youth theater projects. Graham-Adriani will be in residence at A.C.T. to direct Lavery's play, the script of which will then be included in New Plays from A.C.T.'s Young Conservatory, Volume IV. "I am thrilled about the collaboration because I found we work from such similar philosophies. We have both reckoned with the incredible void that exists in dramatic literature for young people. We also share a deeply held belief that writers are at the heart of the theater. The contributions of writers of the highest caliber, writers whose work we would want to see on our mainstages, enrich the literature for young actors in profound, long-lasting ways."

Looking toward the future, Slaght also hopes to enrich the New Plays Program with new writing for middle-school actors, whose unique dramatic needs ("somewhere between Babar the Elephant and Death of a Salesman") are even more difficult to meet.

"The theater should reflect all of our life experiences, regardless of our age," says Slaght. "And we plan to spend the next decade making sure it does."
