WE ARE VERY PARTICULAR IN SELECTING WINES for our wine list. Sure, we taste them like everyone else. Then we apply the acid test: are they American? If they aren’t, we don’t choose them! Why?

There is a world of great wines right here in the United States. You don’t have to practice French or brush up on the regions of Italy to enjoy a world-class wine with your meal.

Dungeness crab, Sonoma lamb, American foie gras, local salmon and peak of season produce all play a role in creating our farm-fresh American fare. From our travels, we’ve learned that local cuisine is enhanced by the local wines. We’re confident you’ll agree. We go the extra mile to bring you world-class wines, but we never leave the Country.
ABOUT A.C.T.

AMERICAN CONSERVATORY THEATER nurtures the art of live theater through dynamic productions, intensive actor training in its conservatory, and an ongoing dialogue with its community. Under the leadership of Artistic Director Carey Perloff and Managing Director Heather Kitchen, A.C.T. embraces its responsibility to conserve, renew, and reinvent its relationship to the rich theatrical traditions and literatures that are our collective legacy, while exploring new artistic forms and new communities. A commitment to the highest standards informs every aspect of A.C.T.'s creative work.

Founded in 1965 by William Ball, A.C.T. opened its first San Francisco season at the Geary Theater in 1967. In the 1970s, A.C.T. solidified its national and international reputation, winning a Tony Award for outstanding theater performance and training in 1979. During the past three decades, more than 300 A.C.T. productions have been performed to a combined audience of seven million people; today, A.C.T.'s performance, education, and outreach programs annually reach more than 250,000 people in the San Francisco Bay Area. In 1996, A.C.T.'s efforts to develop creative talent for the theater were recognized with the prestigious Jujamcyn Theaters Award.

Today A.C.T. is recognized nationally for its groundbreaking productions of classical works and bold explorations of contemporary playwriting. Since the reopening of the Geary Theater in 1996, A.C.T. has enjoyed a remarkable period of audience expansion and renewed financial stability. The company continues to produce challenging theater in the rich context of symposia, audience discussions, and community interaction.

The conservatory, led by Melissa Smith, now serves 2,000 students every year. It was the first training program in the United States not affiliated with a college or university accredited to award a master of fine arts degree. Danny Glover, Annette Bening, Denzel Washington, and Winona Ryder are among the conservatory’s distinguished former students. With its commitment to excellence in actor training and to the relationship between training, performance, and audience, the A.C.T. Master of Fine Arts Program has moved to the forefront of America’s actor training programs, while serving as the creative engine of the company at large.
Come to A.C.T. for the most entertaining education in town. A.C.T. offers several ways for you to learn about the season’s productions and to express your views on the issues they raise:

A.C.T. PROLOGUES
These lively half-hour presentations are conducted by each show’s director and are open to the public regardless of whether you are seeing the performance that evening. Prologues, sponsored by the Junior League of San Francisco, are a perfect way to get a look at the creative process behind each production. Prologues are held before the Tuesday preview of every production, at 5:30 p.m., in the Geary Theater. Doors open at 5 p.m.

AUDIENCE EXCHANGES
These informal sessions are a great way to share your feelings and reactions with fellow theatergoers. Audience Exchanges take place in the Geary Theater for 30 minutes immediately after selected performances and are moderated by A.C.T. staff members and artists.

WORDS ON PLAYS
Each entertaining and informative audience handbook contains advance program notes, a synopsis, and additional background information about the play. A subscription for seven handbooks is available by mail to full-season subscribers for $42; limited copies for individual plays are also available for purchase at the Geary Theater Box Office, and at the merchandise stand in the Geary Theater, for $8 each.

MAMET SPEAKS

Thanks in part to the blistering, almost painfully humorous dialogue for which David Mamet is famous, Pulitzer Prize-winning Glengarry Glen Ross has proved one of its playwright's most enduringly popular works. Since Glengarry caused a sensation with its first productions in the 1980s, the play has become a modern American classic.

Over the last two decades, the Internet revolution has radically changed the way business is done, replacing the salesman who sits at your kitchen table with a mouse and a desktop, and the success of young "dot-commers"—with their seemingly infinite real estate-buying capacity—has become a cliché. Yet startups are failing at an alarming rate, and the pursuit of the "close" still consumes the most desperate dealmakers. The themes addressed by Mamet in much of his work remain universal. Below the playwright speaks about the Darwinian economic struggle to survive, the drama and comedy of the con, and the demystification of the American Dream.

REALISM VERSUS TRUTH

Q: Are there certain themes that you’re trying to get across in your plays?

Mamet: Well, one is drawn to certain things, you know. A fellow goes to a party and his eye is drawn by a certain type of girl. It doesn’t do any good to point out that there are other women there perhaps equally or more attractive. His predilections are not subject to his own intellectual recall or understanding. There’s something much deeper. And it’s the same thing in playwriting. The things which one is drawn to write about don’t stem from intellectual prejudice or even affection, but rather from something much deeper.

I’m interested in some of the things that you’re drawn to, because they’re not directly out of your own background, are they? I know you worked in a real estate office, but the real estate salesmen in Glengarry Glen Ross are examples of the kind of people whom you feel a particular interest in and compassion for.

Right. What they are is the lumpen proletariat. Sure, America’s increasingly becoming a corporate society, a bureaucratic society, a rigidly stratified, and very, very unhappy society. And those people who are involved in the aboveboard aspects of that society are uninteresting to me.

I must tell you that during the intermission of the English production of Glengarry Glen Ross I heard an American woman say, “He certainly has a good ear for street language.” An English woman next to her said, “Do Americans really speak that way in the street?” and the American woman thought for a minute, then said thoughtfully, “Yes.” (Laughs) I don’t know if the language as you present it is accurate, but it sounds true.
If it sounds true, it is true. I mean, would it increase your enjoyment if I told you that I actually grew up in a house where they sold real estate, or would it decrease your enjoyment if I told you that I had never been in a real estate office in my life? See, the important thing is that it's a play. The important thing in a play is that it be internally consistent, because finally there's no such thing as objective truth. If you really look at people who are called realistic writers over the course of 50, 60 years of American dramaturgy, retrospectively they don't seem so very realistic. What they do seem is true. What they do seem is dramatically and internally consistent.

Does it irritate you when people talk about your uncanny ear for American speech?

Well, the truth is I do have an uncanny ear for American speech, and it's certainly served me in good stead and saved me from the ravages of many professions in which I might not be as happy as the one in which I find myself. There's also nothing I can do about it.

Is it just that you have this uncanny ear or do you also dissect the language? It seems to me that you use certain constructions that I would never have thought of as being parts of speech, and then when I heard them, sort of laughed with recognition. Do you analyze...

I just make it up. I just absolutely make it up as I go along. It's just a gift. You don't have to have a gift for dialogue to write plays, as Mr. O'Neill proved conclusively.

THE PLAYWRIGHT AS CON MAN

The con game is one of the fixtures in your work. What's behind your fascination with the con?

Well, I have spent some time around con men, and they are fascinating people. I've always been interested in the continuum that starts with charm and ends with psychopathy. Con artists deal in human nature, and what they do is all in the realm of suggestion. It is like hypnosis or, to a certain extent, like playwriting.

How?

Part of the art of the play is to introduce information in such a way, and at such a time, that the people in the audience don't realize they have been given information. They accept it as a matter of course, but they aren't really aware of it so that later on, the information pays off. It has been consciously planted by the author.

And he is working a con?

Right. Now, in a bad play, the author will introduce the information frontally. You actually tell the audience that you are about to give them some information and that it is important to what happens later in the play. In a good play, the information is delivered almost as an aside. The same mechanism holds true in the con game.

If you're giving the mark information that he—or she, in the case of a film of mine called House of Games—is going to need in order to be taken advantage of, and you don't want him to know that he has been given the information, then you would bring it in through the back door. Let's say my partner and I are taking you to the cleaners. The three of us are talking and my partner and I get into an argument. We start saying things that you aren't supposed to hear. I say to you, "Excuse me for a second, I'm sorry about this, and blah, blah, blah." Then I take my partner aside and we start screaming at each other, really out of control. You have not only been given information, you've been told to please look the other way. Well, that is going to put your mind on afterburner. Later you use that information, which you think you got accidentally, to put together what you think are the pieces.

A useful skill, then?

Sure. The con game is what people do, most of the time, with few exceptions. After we reach a certain economic level, we try to say that we're no longer trying to talk you out of your money. We're doing "investment banking" or we've got a film "in development."

-Geoffrey Norman and John Rezek, Playboy (April 1995)

CONFLICTING IMPULSES IN THE INDIVIDUAL

Glengarry Glen Ross was a watershed in terms of your work. Do you see it as an artistic breakthrough as well? Or more as a continuation?

Well, it's kind of a bastard play. It's formally a gang comedy in the tradition of The Front Page or Men in White. And the first act is episodic, although like a detective story, almost gothic. The second act is a very traditional form last act of a comedy drama.

What makes it different though? Why did it get the response it did?

I don't know. But I guess it speaks to something that is current in the collective unconscious of the country at this time: the idea of the difference between business and fraud, what's permissible in the name of getting a living and what isn't.

In that sense, do you see it as a continuation of the themes of American Buffalo? I mean, "business" of course is a key word in American Buffalo as well . . .

Yes, I think in many ways it is. . . . But seen in terms of the plot, Glengarry Glen Ross could be perceived as a fairly mundane exercise, a "whodunit." Well, so is Hamlet a "whodunit." But Glengarry really isn't a "whodunit," it is a gang comedy which is a play about revealing the specific natures of a bunch of people who happen to be involved in one enterprise.

Did you want us to be sympathetic to the figure of Roma, the slickest salesman?

Russell is a 1993 graduate of A.C.T.

CHRIS FERRY (Understudy) graduated from the A.C.T. Master of Fine Arts Program in the class of 2000. He has performed on the Geary stage as Clitandre in The Misanthrope earlier this season and as Matev in Edward II and Filch in The Threepenny Opera last season. A.C.T. credits also include Touchstone in As You Like It, Freder in Pains of Youth, and Madame Toma in Girl Gone in M.F.A. productions at the Magic Theatre. Ferry is a graduate of Dartmouth College.

ANTHONY FUSSO (Understudy) has been a professional actor since graduating from Juilliard in 1983. Highlights of the last 17 years include: Simon Gray’s Holy Terror, Shaw’s Man and Superman, David Mamet’s Life in the Theatre (with F. Murray Abraham), Ira Levin’s Cabaret, and others off-Broadway, as well as numerous regional theater productions, including The Misanthrope and Edward II at A.C.T., the title role of Macbeth, the American premiere of Harold Pinter’s adaptation of 12 Angry Men, and the world premiere of Jules Feiffer’s Anthony Rose. Television credits include “The Sopranos,” “Law & Order” (five episodes), “Trinity,” “L.A. Law,” “The Wright Verdicts,” and all the New York–based “soaps.”

WILL HUDDLESTON (Understudy) just appeared in A Christmas Carol at A.C.T. He is resident director of the California Theatre Center, where he has appeared in The Would-Be Gentleman, Sherlock’s Last Case, and Harvey, among many others. Most recently, he played Stephen in Dealer’s Choice with the Actor’s Ensemble Theatre. He has worked with five Shakespeare festivals, including six years with the Oregon Shakespeare Festival, as both actor and director. In Seattle, he performed at the Intiman Theatre Company; in the Bay Area, he was artistic director of the VTA Shakespeare Festival and has worked as an actor or director with Marin Theatre Company, San Jose Repertory Theatre, the Magic Theatre, and others. Huddleston has written numerous dramatic adaptations, and his original plays include The Journey of Lewis and Clark, The Legend of King Arthur, and Amelia Earhart.

LES WATERS (Director) has directed productions of Big Love, by Charles Mee, Jr., at the Humana Festival/Actors Theatre of Louisville; Nebraska and Life During Wartime, by Keith Reddin, The Importance of Being Earnest, and Nora at the La Jolla Playhouse; Our Country’s Good, by Timberlake Wertenbaker, at the Mark Taper Forum; The Designated Mourner, by Wallace Shawn, and The Memory of Water, by Shelagh Stephenson, at Steppenwolf Theatre Company; Ghost on Fire, by Michael Weller, and Spinning into Butter, by Rebecca Gilman, at the Goodman Theatre; The House of Bernarda Alba at the Guthrie Theater; Media Amok, by Christopher Durang, at the American Repertory Theatre; The Summer Moon, by John Olive, at A.C.T. in Seattle; Ourselves Alone, by Anne Devlin, at Arena Stage; Life During Wartime at Manhattan Theatre Club; Fen and Ice Cream with Hot Fudge, by Caryl Churchill, Rum and Coke, by Keith Reddin, and Romeo and Juliet at the New York Shakespeare Festival. His UK credits include productions at the Royal National Theatre, Royal Court Theatre, Traverse Theatre in Edinburgh, Hampstead Theatre Club, Soho Poly, Bristol Old Vic, West Yorkshire Playhouse, Chester Gateway, and Joint Stock Theatre Company; he has also directed Caryl Churchill’s Top Girls at the Tokyo Metropolitan Arts Space. Waters is a professor in the theater department at UC San Diego, where he is the head of the M.F.A. directing program.

LOY ARCENAS (Scenic Designer) has designed The Invention of Love, Indian Ink, Singer’s Boy, The Matchmaker, and High Society for A.C.T. Recent work includes Arthur Kopit’s Y2K for Manhattan Theatre Club and Eve Ensler’s Vagina Monologues off Broadway. World and/or New York/American premieres include Love! Valour! Compassion!, Corpus Christi, Once on This Island, Prelude to a Kiss, Three Hotels, Spunk, Spic-o-Rama, Cry the Beloved Country, Naomi and Eudora, Blue Window, Sumptuous, Blow Sideways through Life, The Baltimore Waltz, and Ballad of Yachty. He has received a Los Angeles Drama Critics’ Circle Award, a Jeff Award, two Drama Desk Award nominations, and an Obie for sustained excellence of set design. Directing credits include Middle Finger, Flipznoids, Swoony Planet, Whirligig, and The Theory of Everything in New York City, and upcoming productions of Stop Kiss for Brava! and Hedda Gabler for the Aurora Theatre. He currently serves as a resident director at New Dramatists. Arcenas is from the Philippines.

ANN BRUCE ALING (Costume Designer) returns to A.C.T., where she previously designed A Streetcar Named Desire (Bay Area Theatre Critics’ Circle Award nominee). Earlier this season her design work included San Jose Repertory Theatre’s production of Amy’s View. She has designed numerous productions for South Coast Repertory, including The Philadelphia Story and You Can’t Take It with You (Los Angeles Drama Critics’ Circle Awards for both), Shadowlands, Six Degrees of Separation, and Death of a Salesman. Aling has also designed for the Mark Taper Forum, Los Angeles Theatre Center, Pasadena Playhouse, Philadelphia Theatre Company, New Mexico Repertory, and Grove Shakespeare Festival. She spent five seasons (110 episodes) designing the television series “Babylon 5,” and has also designed the television movies Siringo, In the Beginning, Thirdspace, and River of Souls.

JAMES F. INGALLS (Lighting Designer) returns to A.C.T., where he has designed The Invention of Love and The Duchess of Malfi. His other work includes San Francisco Ballet, choreographed by Helgi Tomasson; El Grito, choreographed by Lila York; and Maestrom, Pacific, and Sandpaper Ballet, all choreographed by Mark Morris for the San Francisco Ballet and John Adams’s The Death of Klinghoffer, directed by Peter Sellars at the San Francisco Opera. For Berkeley Repertory Theatre Ingalls designed How I Learned to Drive, McIntyre, and The Revenger and at Cal Performances/Zellerbach, Platée, The Hard Nut, L’Allegro il Penseroso ed il Moderato, The Peony Pavilion, and I Was Looking at the Ceiling and Then I Saw the Sky. Recent projects include Resurrection and The Four Seasons for Boston Ballet, Carmen at the Houston Grand Opera, and El Niño by John Adams at Théâtre du Châtelet. Ingalls often collaborates with Beth Burns and the Saint Joseph Ballet in Santa Ana.

GARTH HEMPHILL (Sound Designer) is in his fourth season as A.C.T.’s resident sound designer. He has designed more than 100 productions, including, for A.C.T., The Misanthrope, Frank Loesser’s Hans Christian Andersen, Edward II, 2 Pianos, 4 Hands, The House of Mirth, The Invention of Love, The Threepenny Opera, Insurrection: Holding History, A Christmas Carol, Mary Stuart, The Guardsman, Old Times, and A Streetcar Named Desire (Bay Area Theatre Critics’ Circle Award). He has earned Drama-Logue Awards for his work on Jar the Floor, A Christmas Carol (at South Coast Repertory), The Things You Don’t Know; Blithe Spirit, New England, Lips Together, Teeth Apart, Fortinbras, and the world premiere of Richard Greenberg’s Three Days of Rain. Hemphill is a principal partner of GLH Design, Inc., a local design firm.

DEBORAH SUSSEL (Dialect Consultant) trained at Carnegie-Mellon University with Edith Skinner and was awarded a Fulbright Scholarship for study in London. She is currently in her 26th season with A.C.T. She has been featured in numerous plays and has served as speech and dialect coach for more than 40 A.C.T. productions. Her most recent work includes The Invention of Love, The Misanthrope, Indian Ink, and Tartuffe at A.C.T.; Morning’s at Seven at the San Francisco Opera; and Dinner with Friends at Berkeley Repertory Theatre.

KIMBERLY MARK WEBB (Stage Manager) is in his seventh season at A.C.T., where he worked most recently on The Misanthrope, Edward II, The Invention of Love, and The Threepenny Opera. During 19 years with Berkeley Repertory Theatre he stage-managed more than 30 productions. Other credits include Picasso at the Lapin Agile in San Francisco, The Woman Warrior for Center Theatre Group in Los Angeles, Mary Stuart and The Lady from the Sea at Boston’s Huntington Theatre Company, Hecuba at the Williamstown Theatre Festival, and The Philanderer at Aurora Theatre Company. Webb served as production stage manager at Theatre Three in Dallas for six years.

LYNNE M. HARRIS (Assistant Stage Manager) returns to A.C.T., where she did a musical workshop this fall. Recently she stage-managed Shear Madness, Trust, and As Bees in Honey Drown. In Los Angeles she managed Collected Stories, starring Linda Lavin and directed by Gilbert Cates, a benefit at Pasadena Playhouse, and The Palm Springs Follies. She worked in Chicago for 11 years, where she stage-managed more than 35 productions, including Kiss of the Spider Woman, the premiere of YICES, the Chicago premiere of Vampire Lesbians of Sodom, and Anyone Can Whistle. Opera credits include Marriage of Figaro and the touring production of Madame Butterfly for Pittsburgh Opera Theatre.

TONY CASTELLANO (Assistant Director) is a freelance director and producer in San Francisco and Austin, Texas, where he has directed productions of Waiting for Godot, Endgame, Snowdowne, Godot Arrives, Fireheart, and Good Grief. In the last year he has assisted director Eiting on for the San Francisco Mime Troupe and directed shows for the Edinburgh Fringe Festival and the San Francisco Fringe Festival. He is an Actors’ Equity Association candidate, a member of the SSDC and TBA, and a finalist for the Directors Guild of America’s professional training program in Hollywood. Castellano received his B.A. in theater arts from Humboldt State University.
I think so. I always want everyone to be sympathetic to all the characters. Because when you aren’t, what you are doing is writing a melodrama with good guys and bad guys. Drama is really about conflicting impulses in the individual. That is what all drama is about. And with the birth of the antagonist you get two people on the stage. What you are doing, just as in a dream, is taking one individual and splitting him into two parts. And with the further elaboration of drama into more characters, always what is happening is the splitting of the nature of one individual into many more parts.

So all the characters in that play are aspects of a single person?

Sure. Just as they are in a dream or in a myth. . . . The difference between a comedy and a drama is that in the drama or the tragedy the two major aspects would be two vehemently opposed aspects of one individual. In the comedy, what they are is many, somewhat dissimilar renditions of the same attitude. Which I think is true in all gang comedies, and it is certainly true of Glengarry.

Some of your plays, notably Glengarry, in their attitude towards big business have been compared with Arthur Miller’s Death of a Salesman.

Yes, but Death of a Salesman is really not concerned with big business. That is the difference: Death of a Salesman is a tragedy. The gang comedy is really concerned with the effects of the specific environment, which in a gang comedy is almost always the workplace, on the people engaged—whereas in Death of a Salesman Miller is concerned with the family. It is a tragedy about a man who happens to be a salesman.

THE MYTH OF THE AMERICAN DREAM

The myth of the American Dream seems central to your artistic vision. In American Buffalo, The Water Engine, Lakeboat, Mr. Happiness, A Life in the Theatre, and Glengarry Glen Ross, a whole cultural as well as spiritual dimension of the American Dream myth is present. Could you comment on why this myth engages you so much?

It interests me because the national culture is founded very much on the idea of strive and succeed. Instead of rising with the masses one should rise from the masses. Your extremity is my opportunity. That’s what forms the basis of our economic life, and this is what forms the rest of our lives. That American myth: the idea of something out of nothing. And this also affects the spirit of the individual. It’s very divisive. One feels one can only succeed at the cost of someone else. Economic life in America is a lottery. Everyone’s got an equal chance, but only one guy is going to get to the top. “The more I have the less you have.” So one can only succeed at the cost of, the failure of another, which is what a lot of my plays—American Buffalo and Glengarry Glen Ross—are about. . . . In Glengarry Glen Ross it’s the Cadillacs, the steak knives, or nothing. In this play it’s obvious that these fellows are put in fear for their lives and livelihood; for them it’s the same thing. They have to succeed at the cost of each other. As Thorstein Veblen in Theory of the Leisure Class says, sharp practice inevitably shades over into fraud. Once someone has no vested interest in behaving in an ethical manner and the only bounds on his behavior are supposedly his innate sense of fair play, then fair play becomes an outdated concept: “But wait a second! Why should I control my sense of fair play when the other person may not control his sense of fair play? So hurray for me and to hell with you.”

What are your thematic concerns in Glengarry Glen Ross?

If there are any thematic concerns, they must be blatant. The play concerns how business corrupts, how the hierarchical business system tends to corrupt. It becomes legitimate for those in power in the business world to act unethically. The effect on the little guy is that he turns to crime. And petty crime goes punished; major crimes go unpunished.

In Glengarry Glen Ross, it’s interesting to watch Aaronow. He’s the one who comes closest to being the character of a raisonneur, for throughout the whole play he’s saying, “I don’t understand what’s going on.” “I’m no good.” “I can’t fit in here.” “I’m incapable of either grasping those things I should or doing those things which I’ve grasped.” Or his closing lines, “Oh, God I hate this job.” It’s a kind of monody throughout the play. Aaronow has some degree of conscience, some awareness; he’s troubled. Corruption troubles him. The question he’s troubled by is whether his inability to succeed in the society in which he’s placed is a defect—that is, is he manly or sharp enough—or if it’s, in effect, a positive attribute, which is to say that his conscience prohibits him. So Aaronow is left between these two things and he’s incapable of choosing. This dilemma is, I think, what many of us are facing in this country right now. As Veblen, who’s had a big influence on me, says, a lot of business in this country is founded on the idea that if you don’t exploit the possible opportunity, not only are you being silly, but in many cases you’re being negligent, even legally negligent.

ON VIOLENCE

Do you consider your work to be violent?

Violent? No.

As an artist, do you find it more challenging to deal with the evil and violent side of human nature?

Drama can’t be about nice things happening to nice people. Anyone who has ever been around gangsters knows that they are extremely charming. They speak colorfully, they’re sentimental. Generous. They are interesting to write about, interesting to create. . . .

It’s just dead wrong to suggest that my work incites—or supports—violence. My job is exactly the contrary. My job is to show human interactions in such a way that the synthesis an audience takes away will perhaps lead to a greater humanity, a greater understanding of human motives. I don’t know how successful I am at it, but that absolutely is my job. If the net effect is otherwise, which I don’t think that it is, then they should throw me in jail.

—Mary Cantwell, Vogue (July 1984)

TELEVISION AND CAPITALISM

You’ve done some work for television. Didn’t it change your opinion of the medium?

What is television’s agenda? It is a tool to sell you products. What are the tools it uses? Guilt. Shame. Envy. . . . I grew up in the first television generation and I spent a lot of time wondering why my life was so inferior to—and unlike—the lives I saw depicted on television.

Which brings to mind the British reviewer who called you “one of our chief critics of capitalism.”

I don’t think I was ever a critic of capitalism. I’m a dramatist. The drama is not a prescriptive medium. Part of what drama can offer—because it should work on the subconscious level—is the relief that comes with addressing a subject previously thought unaddressable. . . . Anything I might know about American capitalism is not going to be found in a play.

Just the same, your play—and film—Glengarry Glen Ross could be called an indictment of the kill-or-be-killed nature of business.

Yeah. Well, Robert Service said it best. He said there isn’t a law of God or man that goes north of ten thousand bucks. You know, money makes people cruel. Or has the capacity to do so. Human interactions—that’s what I hope my plays are about. The rest of it is just a way to get somewhere.

CAREY PERLOFF (Artistic Director) assumed artistic leadership of A.C.T. in 1992. Known for directing innovative productions of classics and championing new writing for the theater, Perloff has staged for A.C.T. acclaimed productions of Euripides’ Hecuba, the American premieres of Tom Stead’s Invention of Love and Indian Ink, The Three Penny Opera, Mary Stuart, Old Times, Arcadia, The Rose Tattoo, Antigone, Creditors, Uncle Vanya, Home. The world premiere of Leslie Ayvazian’s The Singer’s Boy and the Geary Theater inaugural production of Shakespeare’s Tempest. This season she directs new translations of Molière’s Misanthrope and Pirandello’s Enrico IV.

Before joining A.C.T., Perloff was artistic director of Classic Stage Company in New York, where she directed the world premiere of Ezra Pound’s Elektra, the American premiere of Pinter’s Mountain Language and The Birthday Party, and many classic works. Under Perloff’s leadership, CSC won numerous Obie Awards, including the 1988 Obie for artistic excellence. In 1993, she directed the world premiere of Steve Reich and Beryl Korot’s opera The Cave at the Vienna Festival and the Brooklyn Academy of Music.

Perloff received a B.A. in classics and comparative literature from Stanford University and was a Fulbright Fellow at Oxford. She was on the faculty of the Tisch School of the Arts at New York University for seven years and teaches and directs in the A.C.T. Master of Fine Arts Program. She is the proud mother of Lexie and Nicholas.

HEATHER M. KITCHEN (Managing Director), now in her 26th year of professional theater, joined A.C.T. as managing director in 1996. She currently serves as a member of the executive committee of the League of Resident Theaters (LORT) (the national consortium of regional theaters), the board of governors of the Commonwealth Club of California, the board of directors of Big Brothers/Big Sisters, San Francisco and the Peninsula, and the leadership board of the San Francisco chapter of the American Red Cross. Before joining A.C.T., she served as general manager of the Citadel Theatre in Edmonton, Alberta, where she was responsible for a five-theater complex that produced up to 16 productions annually. A native of Canada, Kitchen received an honors degree in drama and theater arts from the University of Waterloo and earned her M.B.A. from Richard Ivey School of Business at The University of Western Ontario.

MELISSA SMITH (Conservatory Director), oversees the administration of the A.C.T. Conservatory’s Master of Fine Arts Program, Young Conservatory, Summer Training Congress, and Studio A.C.T., in addition to serving as the master acting teacher of the M.F.A. Program. Before joining A.C.T., Smith served as director of the program in theater and dance at Princeton University, where she taught acting, scene study, and Shakespeare for six years. Also a professional actor, she has performed in regional theaters and in numerous off-off Broadway plays, including work by Mac Wellman and David Greenspan. Smith holds a B.A. in English and theater from Yale College and an M.F.A. in acting from the Yale School of Drama.

JAMES HAIRE (Producing Director) began his career on Broadway with Eva Le Gallienne’s National Repertory Theater. He also stage-managed the Broadway productions of And Miss Reardon Drinks a Little and Maury (a musical by Carole Bayer Sager), as well as the national tour of Woody Allen’s Don’t Drink the Water. Off-Broadway he produced Eisen’s Little Eyolf (directed by Marshall W. Mason) and Shaw’s Arms and the Man. Haire joined A.C.T. in 1971. He and his department were awarded Theater Crafts International’s award for excellence in the theater in 1989, and in 1992 Haire was awarded a lifetime achievement award by the Bay Area Theatre Critics’ Circle.

Contrasting Newspapers
Media Sponsor
Contrast Newspapers has a longstanding commitment to the arts and is delighted to continue its support of A.C.T. as media sponsor of Goodnight Children Everywhere. Its award-winning coverage of Bay Area arts and entertainment is just one of the reasons Contrast Newspapers and Hills Publications have become the leading source of news in the East Bay. The Times publishes a popular “Friday Time Out” entertainment guide, as well as “A&E,” a comprehensive Sunday arts section.

The paper’s involvement with the Bay Area arts scene extends well beyond the work of its expert critics and feature writers, and of the reporters who cover the business and politics of the arts. Contra Costa Newspapers has sponsored and supported many of the area's leading arts institutions. “We are dedicated to supporting and furthering the arts,” says Contra Costa Newspapers publisher George Riggs. “Cultural activities are vital to the quality of life in the communities we serve.”

The Times and its sister newspapers won 31 awards, including recognition for general excellence, in the 2000 statewide competition.
TAKE STOCK IN A.C.T.
There are many creative ways to give to A.C.T. All are tax deductible and offer A.C.T. donors a tremendous opportunity to:

Avoid capital gains taxes on the sale of appreciated stock;

Create an income-tax deduction equal to the fair-market value of the stock at the time of transfer; and Generate a more significant gift than if you were just writing a check.

Additional ways to contribute to A.C.T.'s success include:

Cash—one of the most familiar ways to give;

Property—most real estate and personal property qualify as tax-deductible charitable gifts; and Life insurance—the cash value of your current paid-up life insurance policy can benefit A.C.T.

PLANNED GIVING
Many people who could not otherwise contribute to A.C.T. as generously as they would like find they are able to do so with a carefully planned gift. You can make a valuable long-term contribution to great theater by:

Making a bequest to A.C.T.—please let us know if you have included A.C.T. in your will or estate plans; or

Creating a life-income charitable trust with A.C.T.—you can gain an immediate and substantial tax deduction, increased annual income paid to you for life, freedom from investment worries, and avoidance of capital gains taxes when you transfer appreciated property to a charitable remainder trust.

LEADERSHIP CAMPAIGN FOR AMERICAN THEATRE

The Leadership Campaign for American Theatre, a challenge program launched in 1993 and spearheaded by NTCF by John D. Ong, chairman emeritus of the BFGoodrich Company, required member theaters to raise new local corporate support to claim their shares of the proceeds. Parking
A.C.T. patrons can park for just $9 at the Hilton SF for up to five hours, subject to availability. Enter on Ellis Street between Mason and Taylor. Show your ticket stub for that day’s performance upon exit to receive the special price. After five hours, the regular rate applies.

AT THE THEATER
The Geary Theater is located at 415 Geary Street. The auditorium opens 30 minutes before curtain.

A.C.T. Merchandise
Posters, sweatshirts, t-shirts, nightshirts, mugs, note cards, scripts, and Books on Plays are available for purchase at the Geary Theater Box Office.

Refreshments
Bar service is available one hour before the performance in the lower lobby and on the second balcony level. Reservations for refreshments to be served at intermission may also be made, at either bar or in the main lobby, during that time. Food and drink are not permitted in the auditorium.

Beepers
If you carry a pager, beeper, cellular phone, or watch with alarm, please make sure that it is set to the “off” position while you are in the theater. You may leave it and your seat number with the house manager, so you can be notified if you are called.

Perfumes
The chemicals found in perfumes, colognes, and scented after-shave lotions, even in small amounts, can cause severe physical reactions in some individuals. As a courtesy to fellow patrons, please avoid the use of these products when you attend the theater.

Emergency Telephone
Leave your seat location with those who may need to reach you and have them call (415) 439-2390 in an emergency.

Latecomers
A.C.T. performances begin on time. Latecomers will be seated before intermission only if there is an appropriate interval.

Listening Systems
Headsets designed to provide clear, amplified sound anywhere in the auditorium are available free of charge in the lobby before performance. Please turn off your hearing aid when using an A.C.T. headset, as it will react to the sound system and make a disruptive noise.

Photographs and recordings of A.C.T. performances are strictly forbidden.

Rest rooms are located in the lower lobby, the balcony lobby, and the uppermost lobby.

Wheelchair seating is available on all levels of the Geary Theater. Please call (415) 749-2427 in advance to notify the house staff of any special needs.
